

BROMELIAD LISTS OF HYBRIDS by Derek Butcher 10/2008

In 1977 we saw the first attempt at a listing of man-made hybrids in the Tillandsioideae (L B Smith 1977). While Dutrie (see Bulletin Horticole, Liege, Belgium) wrote widely on this subject in 1946-1948 there is no definitive list and rarely did he give full reference to previous publications. The same applies to Chevalier who wrote in a similar vein in Monographie des Bromeliacees - Tillandsiees, and there is sometimes conflicting evidence when Dutrie and Chevalier are compared. In L B Smith's lists there is a predominance of European hybrids produced from the end of the 19th to the beginning of the 20th century.

These listings of references are valuable to the researcher because many of the hybrids are still in circulation to this day. Some regrettably are wrongly named and only by referring back to these original descriptions can we find the correct answer.

Remember, this was 27 years after the formation of the Bromeliad Society in America where in 1951 there was the proud boast "Much more hybridising can and will be done" Much hybridising was done but very few records were kept and nobody thought about controls. It was left to Lyman Smith to collate records for future reference. It was not until 1979 that the Bromeliad Society produced its first Check-list of hybrids entitled 'International Checklist of Bromeliad Hybrids'

The year 1979 also saw the final volume of the Flora Neotropica monograph published. Here, more recent references to names of hybrids are listed. It can be clearly seen that billbergias were popular in Europe in the late 19th century and it was not until the 1960's that neoregelias started appearing in ever increasing numbers.

Lyman Smith has left the hybridist with tangible evidence of past work. It is up to the Bromeliad Society International to continue on with this work and encourage a more scientific approach to hybridisation and the keeping of records. The production of a second edition of a world check list is a step in the right direction. This is entitled "The Bromeliad Cultivar Registry" (BCR) compiled by Don A. Beadle June 1998. This is now held in electronic form on the BSI web site in Cultivar Corner. It is updated monthly.

In the early 1980's Brian Smith of Texas went on his own crusade in listing names of plants including those sold by Nurserymen, mainly in Florida, and the last list produced was in 1984 which follows. Such an enterprise will never be attempted in the future.

In 1987 Brian became the BSI Registrar but only stayed a short time because in 1990 he advised me that Don Beadle (who had taken over the reins) was at least getting some cooperation from American hybridists. The 'Manuscript' shows the great use of formulae to identify the plant and as we know this only identifies the parents IF they have been correctly identified, and no foreign pollen was involved. AND on the other hand there are those who name and do not divulge parentage. Oh, for the middle road!

Regrettably Bromeliads are very easy to hybridise and everyone seems to have the same attitude as that expressed in 1951. What should be asked is "Is your hybridising really necessary?" It is a pity that an unregistered plant can be sold for the same price as a registered one which tends to remove an incentive to register.
